ACTIVE AGEING BRISTOL
More Older People, More Active, More Often.

This specially targeted programme gets more local people aged 55 and over, involved more regularly, in physical activity, coaching and volunteering, enabling them to be active, healthy and happy in later life.

Keeping as active as possible is good for our mental wellbeing as well as our physical health. Being physically active as we get older can reduce the risk of us developing depression, heart disease and dementia. It also increases our social networks, helping to reduce the risk of us becoming lonely or isolated.
OUR TIPS FOR WALKING

Sometimes overlooked as a form of exercise, walking briskly can help you build stamina, burn excess calories and make your heart healthier. You don’t have to walk for hours. A brisk 10-minute daily walk has lots of health benefits and counts towards your recommended 150 minutes of weekly exercise.

BEFORE YOU START

Any shoes or trainers that are comfortable, provide adequate support and don’t cause blisters will do. If you’re walking to work, you could wear your usual work clothes with a comfy pair of shoes and change shoes when you get into work. For long walks, you may want to take some water, healthy snacks, a spare top, sunscreen and a sun hat in a small backpack. If you start going for longer walks regularly, you may want to invest in a waterproof jacket and some specialist walking shoes for more challenging routes.

HOW DO I KNOW IF I’M WALKING FAST ENOUGH?

A brisk walk is about three miles an hour, which is faster than a stroll. One way to tell if you’re walking briskly is if you can still talk but can’t sing the words to a song.

You could also try using the free Active 10 app on your smartphone. It tells you when you’re walking fast enough and suggests ways to fit in some more brisk walking. Download the Active 10 app from the App Store and Google Play.

WHAT IF I’M NOT VERY ACTIVE?

If you’re not very active but are able to walk, increase your walking distance gradually. If your joints are a problem, check whether your local swimming pool holds exercise classes. The water helps to support your joints while you move, and once you lose a bit of weight, the pressure on your joints will reduce. If you’re not active because of a medical condition, get advice on exercising with a disability. If you can’t leave the house, why not see if one of our free exercise videos can help?

STAYING MOTIVATED MAKE IT A HABIT

The easiest way to walk more is to make walking a habit. Think of ways to include walking in your daily routine. Examples include:

- Walking part of your journey to work
- Walking to the shops
- Using the stairs instead of the lift
- Leaving the car behind for short journeys
- Walking the kids to school
- Doing a regular walk with a friend
- Going for a stroll with family or friends after dinner
LISTEN TO MUSIC
Walking while listening to music or a podcast can take your mind off the effort. Music can also get you into a rhythm and help you walk faster. You’ll be surprised at how fast the time goes when you’re walking to your favourite tunes.

USE THE ACTIVE 10 APP
Active 10 allows you to track how much and how fast you’ve walked. To keep things interesting, it gives you goals to work towards and rewards your progress. Download Active 10 from the App Store and Google Play.

MIX IT UP
Add variety to your walks. You don’t have to travel to the countryside to find a rewarding walk. Towns and cities offer interesting walks, including parks, heritage trails, canal towpaths, riverside paths, commons, woodlands, heaths and nature reserves.

JOIN A WALKING GROUP
Walking in a group is a great way to start walking, make new friends and stay motivated. Watch a video about Walking for Health’s walking groups. Ramblers organises group walks for health, leisure and as a means of getting around for people of all ages, backgrounds and levels of fitness. Its website has details of many locally organised walks in towns and cities, as well as the countryside.

WAYS TO WELLBEING THROUGH WALKING

A good walk can do wonders for your mental wellbeing.

It improves self-perception and self-esteem, mood and sleep quality, and it reduces stress, anxiety and fatigue. Physically active people have up to a 30% reduced risk of becoming depressed, and staying active helps those who are depressed recover.

We have given some ideas and suggestions about how you can introduce the five ways to wellbeing into your everyday routine, to help your mental health even more than just exercising.

- Walking outdoors can connect you to your local neighbourhood and gives you the opportunity to engage with other people and the social world around you.
- Use your walk to phone friends or family you don’t live with to check in with them.
- By walking you’re already doing this one so well done! If walking is something you are anxious about, or something you’re not used to doing, start small. Some days just take a quick wander around the block, others a longer leg stretch.
- Most smartphones have apps that track steps and distance, if that interests you, so you can see how far you’ve walked over the week or track your route.
- Living in a city, it may be harder to find places off the beaten track but there will be interesting local facts you can learn. For example, in Bristol, why not look out for the blue plaques or, look out for quirky front doors, gardens or window displays, there’s lots you’ve probably never noticed before.
- Take pictures of three things you’ve seen on your walk which have made you smile. You could also think about at least one thing you’ve heard and smelt.
- Importantly, take notice of how going for the walk made you feel. This will be useful in the future when trying to motivate yourself on off days.
These are just a few tips but have a think about what you could do. It’s great if you can build some regular walking or outdoor exercise into your routine as we begin to slowly emerge from lockdown, but importantly be kind to yourself. While we can all look for inspiration of what to do, try not to compare yourself to others and do what’s good for you and your circumstances.

- A great way to learn about something or someone new is to listen to a podcast or audiobook while walking. There’s so much free content out there to learn about new things.
- How about learning a new language? Think about countries you’d like to visit in the future or a language that a friend or family member speaks that you could learn to impress them.
- We are having to think of new ways of showing kindness with social distancing in mind, but it’s more important now than ever before.
- You could go for a walk to deliver some shopping or send a nice letter or gift to a friend or family member.
Go Jauntly is a free app to help you discover walking routes and enjoy everyday outdoor adventures. To help you navigate, you can find step-by-step walking directions and photo’s directions on the Go Jauntly app. Download for free now on the App Store or the Play Store.
